Notice About Blackboard Mobile Learn App:

On August 31, 2017 Blackboard Inc. ended support for the Mobile Learn app for mobile devices, and has been removed from mobile app stores. Although the Mobile Learn app is currently working for most users connecting to Three Rivers' Blackboard Learn online courses, the app will have limited functionality or stop working with future updates to mobile devices. For example, on September 19, 2017 Apple officially released iOS 11 for iPhone and iPad, and the Mobile Learn app no longer functions properly. If you wish to continue to access Blackboard via Mobile Learn, you should refrain from upgrading to iOS 11 temporarily. Android devices are currently unaffected, but that may change with future android system updates.

Blackboard Inc.'s new mobile app "Blackboard" is not currently supported by Three River's version of Blackboard Learn. The Office of Distance Learning for blackboard support plans to upgrade the blackboard server by the start of the Spring 2018 semester to enable full function of this app. The new Blackboard app is available on mobile app stores for both iPhone and Android devices, but it is not currently fully supported and has very limited functionality with our current version of Blackboard.
